Part B. SUMMARY OF THE CURRICULUM (max. 3500 characters, including spaces)

Juan F. Prieto holds a PhD in Geodesy and Geomatics from the ETSI Agrónomos (UPM, 2016), a M.S. in Geodesy and Cartography Engineering (EPES-UPM, 2000) and a B.S. in Engineering Surveying (UPM, 1986). From 2000 until now, he has been teaching in technical engineering programs, both undergraduate and master's degrees in the School of Surveying, Geodesy and Cartography Engineering (UPM).

His research is developed within the framework of Geodesy and Geomatics, and its application to shape and dimensions of the Earth, to natural risks (earthquakes, volcanoes, terrain instabilities) and anthropogenic, both in the observational aspects (using terrestrial and space techniques) and data processing. His research involves the development of national GNSS geodetic networks in general (Europe, Asia and Africa), as well as of crustal displacements and gravity variations fields in volcanic (Canary Islands) and seismic areas (Spain). All these works are a fundamental tool for the location and positioning on the surface of the Earth, as well as in situations of volcanic crisis, or in the study of crustal properties and the mantle in general. Concerning geodetic monitoring, he has jointly applied new observational and data processing methodologies in Radar Synthetic Aperture Interferometry (InSAR), gravimetry, and GNSS (Global Navigation Satellite System), in collaboration with other national and foreign groups.

He has participated in a total of 45 research projects (Spanish national, European Union, ESA, NASA and other Space Agencies, World Bank and international organizations), being in 7 of them Coordinator or Responsible Investigator. He has directed, or co-directed, about fifty B.S. Thesis and M.S Thesis, some of them awarded in several national competitions.

In his professional role he was assigned to the National Geographical Institute (Spanish Government office), as a career officer from 1989 to 2000. Throughout this period, he belonged to the Cuerpo Nacional de Ingenieros Técnicos en Topografía and the Cuerpo de Gestión de Sistema e Informática de la Administración del Estado. During this period, he developed his activity at the Geodetic Programs Service of the aforementioned Geographical Institute, participating in the major geodetic projects developed by the IGN using GNSS spatial techniques: IBERIA95, BALEAR98, REGENTE Network and the GNSS Permanent Station Network. He also participates in former projects by terrestrial techniques: ROI and RPO Geodetic Networks.

He is also an International Consultant of the World Bank (STC-HQ) in geodetic matters, and since 1999 he has carried out research and development projects for the new geodetic networks of national coverage, using space techniques, for the Islamic Republic of Mauritania (1999), the Republic of Mozambique (2002), the Republic of Zambia (2006), Mongolia (2008), the Federal Republic of Nigeria (2010), Burkina Faso (2014), the Dominican Republic (2015) and the Republic of Guinea (Conakry, 2016).
